SYNOPSIS

In this wry “reverse Lolita” tale, 18-year-old Lake discovers he has an unusual attraction for the elderly. Fate lands him a job at an assisted-living facility where he develops an intimate relationship with Mr. Peabody. Upon discovering that the clients are being over-medicated to make them more manageable, Lake weans Mr. Peabody off his medication and helps him escape, resulting in a road trip that deepens their bond. The always-provocative Bruce LaBruce returns with a delicately perverse romantic comedy that is both darkly humorous and emotionally heartfelt.

INTERVIEW WITH BRUCE LABRUCE

How did you come to the idea of a romance between a young man and an elderly?

Over the years I've encountered a number of young people with very specific fetishes involving relationships with much older people, and it's always intrigued me. I've been told stories, most often by younger men, of their first sexual experience having been with a man in his sixties or older, and there always seemed to be a pedagogical aspect to the relationship, as well as a deep affection. Sometimes it's a one time thing, but sometimes the fetish seems to persist. I also made a film, Hustler White, about male prostitutes and their relationships to their often much older johns. The straight-identified, "gay for pay" hustlers sometimes develop very strong sexual and emotional bonds with their older clients, who give them money or other support in exchange for sex. For Gerontophilia, I wanted to create a character with some of these same impulses, but who isn't doing it for the money. In that sense I've configured him as a kind of saint.

Why did you choose to apply the traditional codes of rom-com to this very original subject?

My films, no matter how extreme or pornographic, have always had an intense strain of romanticism running through them. Whether it's the relationship between a hairdresser and a skinhead, or a hustler and a john, the attachments are emotional and romantic, even when there is a very specific and sometimes extreme and taboo fetish involved. So I've always played somewhat ironically with rom-com conventions. With Gerontophilia I wanted to engage these conventions even further, and with a more subtle sense of irony. I also always like to work within the conventions of a particular genre (pornography, horror, etc.) and somehow push it to some extreme or unexpected territory.

Does age matter when you are in love?

Significant age gap relationships between consenting adults transgress a very strong cultural taboo, so the people in such relationships must have a powerful and committed attachment to each other if they are willing to put up with all the disapproval and hostility directed toward them. Sometimes it's perhaps a more sexual dynamic at play - that is, a fetish - and sometimes it involves power and money, but I think it usually involves love and emotional attachment as well.

Does this film mark a new departure for you?

Gerontophilia is a departure for me inasmuch as it doesn't have any sexually explicit content. My previous work has generally involved the intersection of art and porn, but with this film I wanted to work in a more mainstream idiom, specifically referencing certain rom-com conventions and seventies independent and art film aesthetics. Some of my favourite films are seventies indie and/or art films that were widely distributed but which had radical or controversial content. Gerontophilia has presented me with my first opportunity to work within the framework of the film industry proper - it's my first film funded by mainstream funding agencies, and my first union picture! - and with a somewhat significantly larger budget.

BRUCE LABRUCE - DIRECTOR

Bruce LaBruce is a Toronto based filmmaker, writer, director, photographer, and artist. He began his career in the mid eighties making a series of short experimental super 8 films and co-editing a punk fanzine called J.D.s, which begat the queercore movement. He has directed and starred in three feature length movies, No Skin Off My Ass (1991), Super 8 1/2 (1994) and Hustler White (1996). He has also written and directed three art/porn features, Skin Flick (2000) The Raspberry Reich (2004), and L.A. Zombie (2010), and the independent feature Otto; Or, Up With Dead People (2008). Bruce LaBruce has written a premature memoir entitled The Reluctant Pornographer, from Gutter Press. The Plug-In Gallery in Winnipeg, Canada published a book on his work, Ride Queer Ride, in 1998. Queer Frame, a division of Atlantide Entertainment, published a book of his image-based work, Bruce(x)ploitation, in Italy in 2011. In the past several years, Bruce LaBruce has written and directed three theatrical productions: Cheap Blacky (2007), The Bad Breast; or, The Strange Case of Theda Lange (2009) and Macho Family Romance (2009).

Bruce LaBruce was a contributing editor and frequent writer and photographer for Index magazine, and he has also been a regular contributor to Eye and Exclaim magazines, Dutch, Vice, The National Post, Nerve.com and Black Book. As a fashion photographer he has contributed stories to such magazines as Dazed and Confused, Bon, Tank, Têtu, Fake, Attitude, Blend, Tokion, Purple Fashion, and The National Post.

Bruce LaBruce had his first solo show of photographs presented by the Alleged Gallery in New York in December 1999. He has had subsequent solo exhibits of his photographs in Vancouver, Milano, Toronto, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Porto, Barcelona and New York. LaBruce's latest exhibit of all-new photographs, entitled Obscenity, premiered in Madrid at La Fresh Gallery on Feb 17th, 2012. In 2010 LaBruce directed two episodes of the ARTE documentary series Into the Night with..., one featuring Harmony Korine and Gaspar Noé, the other featuring Béatrice Dalle and Virginie Despentes. He also directed his first opera, an adaptation of Arnold Schoenberg's Pierrot Lunaire, in Berlin in 2011.

DANIEL ALLEN COX – WRITER

Daniel Allen Cox is an author, columnist, Lambda Literary and Ferro-Grumley Award finalist. In the 2009 Montreal Mirror readers' poll, Daniel was voted one of the top 10 best local authors. In 2010, AfterElton.com named Daniel one of its eleven "Favorite Gay Canucks."

After stints as a Jehovah's Witness and a porn model/actor, Daniel wrote the novella Tattoo This Madness In, shortlisted for a 2007 Expozine Alternative Press Award. This was followed by his debut novel Shuck, which was published to wide acclaim and rave reviews, and was shortlisted for a 2009 Lambda Literary Award and a 2009 ReLit Award. Shuck was an Arsenal Pulp Press bestseller in trade paperback, and a hardcover bestseller for New York-based InsightOut Books Club. His second novel, Krakow Melt, was published by Arsenal Pulp Press in September 2010. It was excerpted in The Advocate, chosen by San Francisco's A Different Light bookstore as its October 2010 book club pick, named a Book Marks Best Fiction 2010 selection, and selected as a finalist for the Ferro-Grumley Award for LGBT Fiction and for a Lambda Literary Award.

GLENN BERMAN – EDITOR

Glenn Berman is a Montreal-based film editor. From the Grammy Award-winning Peter Gabriel's Secret World to the Oscar-nominated Prisoner of Paradise, Glenn has collaborated on a diverse array of film projects. His work in feature films, television and documentaries spans three decades and has been recognized by multiple nominations. In 2005, Glenn received the Prix Jutra for Mémoires affectives.

RAMACHANDRA BORCAR – COMPOSER

Half Indian, half Danish and raised in Montreal, Ram's diverse roots and classical training have assured him of having a unique voice and a comprehensive musical career. One of his earliest musical ventures was as the drummer of the 80's cult hardcore band, Hazy Azure and he has since continued to branch out in a variety of directions, including work as a film composer, studio producer, performer and founder of both Semprini Records and Signed By Force record labels.

Following his studies in classical composition, orchestration and electro-acoustic music Borcar went on to release two critically acclaimed albums under the moniker Ramasutra, The East Infection and ElPipo DelTaxi.

Under his own name, he released the original soundtrack to the award-winning documentary Regular or Super, a film on the works of German architect Mies van der Rohe. The score and its soundtrack album Steel And Glass gained notoriety amongst both film and music critics alike.

PIER-GABRIEL LAJOIE – Lake

Pier-Gabriel (known to his friends as PG) was born in 1994 in Greenfield Park, Canada. He plays hockey as a center for the National of Bromont and is currently a full time drama student in Montreal's Conservatoire Lassalle. Before landing the lead in Gerontophilia, he appeared as a principal in several episodes of the hit Canadian TV show 30 Lives.
